Vintage 2016

WINE ADVOCATE – Neal Martin – 88-90

WINE ENTHUSIAST – Roger Voss – 90 BEST BUY

This ripe, fruity wine has soft tannins and a generous, warm character that makes it already drinkable. Better, however, to wait until its full potential is realized, from 2019.

Vintage 2015

WINE ADVOCATE – Neal Martin – 89-91

The 2015 Château de Pitray has a well-defined, precise bouquet with blackberry and crushed strawberry fruit, the oak is nicely integrated. The palate is medium-bodied with fine tannin, not much depth here, but very well-balanced with a silky smooth finish. This comes highly recommended, since it is usually well-priced.

WINE ENTHUSIAST – Roger Voss – 88

Barrel sample : 88 Red fruits dominate this wine while light tannins, a smoky undertone and a clear line of acidity make it bright. There's a subtle mineral edge, while the finish is fresh and fruity.

JANCIS ROBINSON

Madame Château de Pitray : The top cuvée from this admirable property : 75% Merlot, 23% Cabernet Franc, 2% Malbec. Notably dark, purplish Crimson. Already rather well integrated nose (from a sample take 10 days ago and sent across the Channel). Very spicy. Pretty dry finish but obviously appetising and velvety. Drink 2020-2026

Cabernet Franc Château de Pitray : Unusual to see a grape variety on a Bordeaux label. Dark crimson with purple notes. Very fresh and floral on the nose. Mouth-filling fruit with great seduction and really delicate tannins. Lovely stuff ! Really lush and lovely combination of ripeness and freshness. Cabernet Franc here seems much riper than most Loire examples. Maybe just a little inkiness on the end but thoroughly admirable. GOOD VALUE. Drink 2018-2023

Vintage 2014

WINE ADVOCATE – Neal Martin – 87-89

The Château de Pitray 2014 has a slightly muddled nose at the moment—some good fruit here but it just need alligning. The palate is more promising with chunky black fruit, cedar and tobacco with a firm, structured finish. Good potential, but it will need a couple years in bottle.

CONCOURS DE LYON 2017 : GOLD MEDAL

Guide Hachette 2018 : 2*

A drop of Malbec comes well with Merlot (75%) and Cabernet Franc in this somptuous 2014. The nose is delicate and complex with blackberry, blackcurrant, morello cherry, spices and blond tobacco aromas. The mouth has no reason to be envious with volume, velvety tannins, well-matured wood and length. A smoothly wine. Drinkable 2019-2027.

Vintage 2012

WINE ADVOCATE – Robert Parker – 85-87

One of the largest estates in Castillon, Pitray has been a long-time favorite of this publication. The 2012 reveals tasty, herbaceously-tinged black cherry and black currant fruit along with hints of damp earth and underbrush. Medium-bodied and soft, it is best drunk over the next 5-6 years.

WINE ENTHUSIAST – Roger Voss – 90

A selection from the best grapes and parcels, this is a dense, firm wine with both great tannins and dark fruits. Acidity gives a lift to the dry core of the wine and brings out the black currant fruits. Wood aging is still showing, so the wine needs time. Drink from 2017.

DECANTER : 16.25 (87) Recommended by Berry Bros

Dark chocolate and cappuccino, but manages to stay light and perky, this is a good wine, lots to enjoy. The owner is Alix de Pitray, the latest in 600 years of winemaking in the same family, and the property is rightly seen as one of the most reliable names in Castillon. 13%abv. Drink 2015-2019.

Vintage 2011

WINE ADVOCATE – Robert Parker – 86-88

An attractive, mid-weight, stylish, elegant effort, the 2011 Pitray offers plenty of sweet, cedary, black currant and loamy soil characteristics. From one of the most consistent Castillon producers, it should provide pleasure over the next 6-8 year

CONCOURS DE BORDEAUX 2014 : golden medal

The Cabernet Franc in the blend gives an attractive perfumed character. Spice and pepper go with ripe black plum fruit flavors. It's dense and concentrated, the tannins prominent at this stage. Drink from 2017.

Vintage 2010

WINE ADVOCATE – Robert Parker – 87-88

This recently resurrected estate has fashioned a 2010 offering abundant notes of black cherries, black currants and licorice with a hint of barrique in the background. It is a medium-bodied, richly fruit Cotes de Castillon to drink during its first 4-5 years of life.

WINE ENTHUSIAST - Roger Voss - 90

Concentrated with a strongly tannic élément that is balanced by ripe fruits. It makes for a well-structured, impressive wine that also has a fruity élément. Age for 4-5 years.

Vintage 2009

WINE ADVOCATE – Robert Parker – 87-89

My introduction to this wine was the excellent 1982, and the 2009 is probably the finest Pitray yet made. Its deep ruby/purple colour is accompanied by copious aromas of crushed rocks, red and black currants, and a hint of kirsch. Medium-bodied and loaded with fruit with impressive glycerine and lushness, it offers a lot of flavour for its humble appellation and price point.

Pitray Madame 2008 : 87-89

This old, historic estate of Castillon appears to have been resurrected now that the consultant is Jean-Michel Ferrandz. In the past, these wines were well-made, but light and fruity. The 2008 Madame is another animal altogether. Dense ruby/purple-colored with sweet notes of creme de cassis, and smoky oak, medium to full body, good acids, and beautiful ripeness, it should drink nicely for 5-7 years.

Le Point

Madame de Château Pitray 2008: Very good Blackberry jam, plum, full mouth, caramel, black fruits, rich, full, nearly too powerful.

Guide Hachette: Château de Pitray 2007

The same family has owned the same family since the XIVth. century, which is certainly unique in Bordeaux vineyard. It is really worth visiting the site as well as tasting this 2007 wine, which offers a pleasant bouquet of crystallized cherries, undergrowth and toasted notes. After a smooth attack, the mouth is getting full and round and shows fines tannins. An elegant wine to be drunk or laid down for a while.

GUIDE HACHETTE 2006 :

Even if the château style was designed on Viollet-Le-Duc style in the 19th century, the Pitray 37 hectares have been belonging to the Ségur family since the 16th century.

With a shiny garnet-red dress, this wine is subtil and complex. It needs a bit time for opening. After one year, it will be perfect with fine cheeses.

Guide Robert Parker 2005:

This is a gratifying wine ; smooth cherry with well balanced. Château de Pitray belongs to the « very good » Côtes de Castillon ».
